Join the best bird lovers in town by providing one or more nesting boxes for the birds in your garden. This is the right time of the year to put them up so that the various types of birds can go house hunting and make their selection before nesting begins. Our range of nesting boxes is varied and practical, suitable for all types of gardens. See photos of some the different nesting boxes we have at the bottom of this newsletter.

Ensure you do not miss the thrill of having birds nesting in your garden, making their home, laying the eggs and producing offspring. To witness the sight of the male barbet, who starts to peck at the pilot hole in the sisal log, is an experience not to be missed. As he pecks he fills his crop with fibre and then flies up to a higher branch to spit it out. After an hour or so the patio looks as if it is covered in snow. His head disappears into the log and eventually his whole body goes in, he turns around and his head pops out. He keeps on pecking until his mate, who has been watching the whole procedure, goes in to inspect the premises and accepts her new home.

Elaine has added a number of new nesting boxes made from Terra Cotta, Wood and Wire that will all be available from our shops. She also had a wonderful stand at the Sasol Bird Fair, where Happy Feed did a co-promotion with the Wits Bird Club.

Happy Feed at the Norwood B & B Roofmarket and Parkhurst Village Fair

We have decided to have a stall at the weekly Norwood B & B Mall Market on Saturdays, as well as the Sunday B & B Roofmarket. We had a stall last Saturday in the Mall and it was well received. Most of the products we had on show were Elaine's Bird Products. We will repeat the stall this Saturday and will concentrate on Bird Products as there is a supplier of dog food in the centre which limits the stock we can carry.

The Parkhurst Village Fair takes place on Saturday 26 July 2014 Time: 10:00 - 16:00 Verity Park. R10 for adults; kids and pets free.

It will centre on the things that make the typical Parkhurst resident and visitor tick, such as food & drink, sport & fitness, kids, pets and community. Cycling will be central to this year's Fair as Parkhurst celebrates and cheers on one of its most celebrated residents, Chris Froome, 2013 Tour de France winner. See <http://parkhurstvillagefair.com/> for more details.
